4th Annual Outdoor Expo Set For August 17th

BY WES FEESE
EDITOR

The 2013 Outdoor Expo date has been set for August 17 at Adair County High School's John Burr Memorial Gymnasium. The annual event – put on in conjunction with Jones Chapel Church – will kick off at 9 a.m. and will feature seminars, vendors, giveaways, and contests all day. The event will conclude at 4 p.m. with a drawing for a John Deere Gator.

"The expo was originally built around the vendor show, but it's grown into much more than that," says the expo's co-chair, Terry Partin. "We've added new things every year."

One of the new attractions this year will be certified deer scoring provided by Pulaski County's Dale Weddle. Weddle certifies scores for Boone and Crockett, Pope and Young, and Buckmasters. Buckmasters has even agreed to waive the entry fee for any deer that might qualify for their record books.

"He'll be there scoring deer that have not been scored in the past," Partin says. "We're really excited to have him, and he'll score deer at no cost."

Other big attractions this year are the National Wild Turkey Federation shooting and calling State Championships. Winners of the top divisions will qualify for the World Championships.

"We're extremely happy to partner with the National Wild Turkey Federation," Partin says.

Westlake Files for Chapter 9 Reorganization

BY BLAKE SPIRES
STAFF WRITER

At the conclusion of Tuesday night's regularly scheduled monthly meeting, the Westlake Regional Hospital Board of Trustees entered an executive session with three attorneys in tow. Upon returning from the meeting, Board Chairman Craig Pyles announced that Westlake would be filing for Chapter Nine Bankruptcy reorganization.

The Board then adjourned as the Adair County Hospital District Board of Trustees and performed a call to order under their new name, the Adair County Public Hospital District Corporation Board of Trustees. As the new entity, the Board again announced the Chapter Nine filing, clearly following what is established legal procedure for such a move. The declaration, which was decided upon in order to allow the hospital to more freely maneuver the paralyzing debt in excess of $20 million that it has been saddled with by previous administrations.

Despite the typical stigma and connotation associated with a bankruptcy filing, Chairman Pyles left no doubt about the hospital's future.

"We are not closing. We are open for business. We will be open for business. We have a plan, we just have a $20 million noose around our neck," he said. "We came here to stop the bleeding, and we have. Now we figure out how to erase the debt."

Chapter Nine serves as a major step in erasing that debt. Whereas businesses can file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy, the hospital, as a government and taxpayer-supported entity, cannot. Chapter Nine is the governmental equivalent of Chapter 11, with the city of Detroit making headlines recently for filing their own Chapter Nine claim. The move, which was filed Tuesday morning in Bowling Green, allows the filing party to attempt to reorganize their debts, freezes any pending lawsuits against them, and provides an opportunity to

Another Arrest In Hospital Investigation

For the second time in just over a week a former Westlake Regional Hospital employee has been arrested and charged with eight separate counts of theft.

Kentucky State Police Drug Enforcement Special Investigations Det. Scott Hammond took Cinda L. Meyer, 57, of Greensburg, into custody Tuesday, exactly one week after another former hospital employee – Betsy Dudgeon – was arrested on the

Investigation Continues In Sisters' Same-Day Deaths

BY WES FEESE
EDITOR

There are still more questions than answers surrounding the bizarre deaths of two Adair County sisters early last Friday morning.

Marilyn Eason, 52, and Eunice Gail Gaskin, 48, were found dead at separate locations in Adair County within hours of each other last Friday, leading to speculation that the two had either overdosed, taken lethally tainted drugs, or carried out a suicide pact.

"It's just very odd – them dying on the same night within just a couple hours of each other," says Adair County Deputy Sheriff Adam Cravens, who's helping lead the investigation of Gaskin's death. "We know that they were together the whole day before. We're hoping to see something from the autopsy in the next day or so."

The Columbia Police Dept. is heading the Eason investigation, since her body was discovered at a residence on Hurt St., inside Columbia's city limits, but given the mysterious circumstances, the two investigations are working in collaboration.

CPD Sgt. Gary Roy and Ofc. Kevin Atwood were the first on scene at Eason's death, responding to a report of a woman in a confused state at approx. 2:45 a.m., but upon arrival she was unresponsive and didn't have a pulse. Adair County EMS responded promptly, but Eason had already passed and the Adair Coroner's office was notified. Coroner Todd Akin sent the body to the State Medical Examiner's office for an autopsy. Sgt. Roy continues to head the Eason investigation.

Less than two hours later, Gaskin was found dead at a residence on Hutchison Loy Road. Cravens hopes more information about the deaths is coming.

"Their mother died a month ago," Cravens said Tuesday. "We know they were in Taylor County where she was buried the day before they died. We're going to try to talk to people that saw them that day."

Man Walks Through Adair County On Trek Across U.S.

Dr. Jim Buckley came through Adair County this week, stopping at Columbia Christian Church for the night on his walk from California to New York City. The 3,000-mile voyage is meant to promote family living and a relationship with God.

"I did this for two reasons," Buckley explained Monday evening, after walking nearly 25 miles that day. "One – I felt [the calling] was from God, and two – I have a tremendous heart for the family."

The Weekly WORD

Editorial Commentary
Written By
Wes Feese, EDITOR

The biggest ongoing news story in Adair County for the past several years has without a doubt been Westlake Regional Hospital's well-documented financial woes and the alleged mismanagement of the previous staff.

Both angles of that story came to the forefront this week, with news breaking Tuesday that a second arrest had been made in the Kentucky State Police's investigation of the hospital's previous employees and management team, and then the Westlake Board of Trustees voting later that night to file Chapter nine bankruptcy.

It would be conjecture at this early stage to claim that the supposed actions of those implicated for crimes related to their time at the hospital – as well as those under investigation but have yet to be implicated –are the reasons Westlake had to file bankruptcy, but it's still reasonable to consider. It would have to be a big coincidence for Westlake's financial troubles to be completely unrelated to former Westlake employees getting investigated and arrested for stealing from the hospital.

I won't speculate on guilt or innocence, but if the judicial system determines that these individuals are guilty, or that other individuals that have yet to be charged are guilty, it's my hope that the punishments are severe, because even if a dozen people are thrown in jail, the real punishment for their alleged crimes or negligence will be passed on to this county's taxpayers.

That's what happens when a public institution files bankruptcy – its debts will be absorbed by the tax base. We almost had a 3.7-cent property tax instituted last year, but since it was recalled by petition it didn't go into effect and will instead appear on the ballot in 2014.

It might not matter. Now that the hospital has filed (the paperwork was sent into Bowling Green Wednesday morning), a judge could order a much steeper tax on this county's property owners to repay the debts –something to the tune of 20 cents for every $100 of assessed property value. It could be even higher.

KSP has explicitly said that they expect this investigation to yield more arrests, but a more promising, although way less likely scenario would instead be the recovery of funds that dried up under previous management. Even then, that wouldn't bring back all the jobs that were lost in the reconfiguration that the new management has been forced into. That money will never be recouped though, at least not to the extent that the burden of debt will be taken of Adair County's taxpayers.

I must admit, this is a tough issue to write about. I usually avoid reporting on the hospital since one board member – Bruce White – is married to my mother, and I don't want anyone questioning this paper's objectivity, but the hospital is the most talked-about topic in town and also the issue I'm asked about most by the public. It'd be wrong for me to completely ignore the issue and I've been encouraged to offer my opinions on the matter, even though I have to be careful with what I say because the investigation is ongoing and no one has been convicted.

There seems to be one individual that most people want to see charged – former CEO Rusty Tungate – but that's yet to happen. I'm confident that if Tungate is guilty of any wrongdoing the investigation will uncover it. If Tungate hasn't done anything wrong, the investigation will absolve him and we will all move on. I trust that the KSP has their best men on the case and they're working to find the truth of everything that happened at Westlake over the past several years, whatever that truth may be.

The point to remember though is that no matter who is responsible for the dreadful situation our hospital is in, we'll all pay the price.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

ADULT EDUCATION CENTER

To The Community:

As we begin our second year here at the Adair County Adult Education Center (108 Lindsey Wilson Street), I would like to take a moment and reflect back on the success of this first year and all who helped make it possible. When my staff and I began this journey we were overwhelmed and excited at the opportunity to prepare the residents of Adair County for whatever their life had in store for them, whether it be continuing their education or furthering their employability skills. As with all programs of this nature, reaching State set goals is mandatory. Reaching these goals seemed nearly impossible and would have been without the support of community members and business leaders of Adair County. It is because of their support and the support of this county that I can proudly announce that the Adair County Adult Education Center has not only reached our first year goals, but has ended the 2013 year ranked 24th out of 120 counties in the state of Kentucky. As of June 30, 2013 the Adult Education Center had 264 students enrolled, 42 GED awarded, and 40 Silver and Gold National Career Readiness Certificates awarded. Out of the 264 students enrolled, 59 students continued their education on the college level.

I would like to thank business and community leaders and citizens of Adair County for all their support within this first year. We are working to make this program one that Adair County can be proud to have. Our goals for the 2013-2014 year are 306 students enrolled and 61 GED awarded. With the support of this community, I know anything is possible. I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you Adair County for the first of many successful years.

If anyone is interested in any of the services we offer please call us at 270-384-7475 or 270-384-1741. The GED test is changing effective January 1, 2014, and anyone who has not successfully completed each section of the GED will need to do so before December 18, 2013 otherwise you will be required to retest in all subjects. In the anticipation of the computer based test, we are offering on-line classes starting August 19, 2013. Anyone who is interested in registering for these classes can do so at any time by calling the center at 270-384-7475.

McConnell Meets with USDA Deputy Secretary Nominee

McConnell raises concerns to nominee on behalf of Kentucky's tobacco farmers

U.S. Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell met with the nominee for U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Deputy Secretary, Krysta Harden, today in his office. He requested this meeting to discuss the USDA's eleventh-hour changes to tobacco crop insurance requirements for 2013, as well as the ongoing tobacco losses due to weather in Kentucky.

During the meeting, Senator McConnell questioned Harden as to how she plans to ensure a realistic and transparent process that involves more input from farmers with regards to crop insurance and other USDA policy changes.

"Kentucky's tobacco growers are some of the hardest workers in the nation, and I fully appreciate what they do for our state's economy," Senator McConnell said. "I appreciate Krysta Harden meeting with me at my request, and I hope she will listen to my constituents' concerns. I am hopeful she will be a strong advocate on behalf of our nation's tobacco growers."

NOTE: On December 18, 2012, the USDA's Risk Management Agency (RMA), without notice in the Federal Register, announced changes to crop insurance requirements for burley and flue-cured tobacco effective for the 2013 planting season. While the policy changes themselves were established as a good faith effort to address crop insurance fraud and improve program integrity, the announcement's untimeliness rendered countless Kentucky farmers' land ineligible for coverage this year. Many of Kentucky's tobacco growers had already made irreversible planting preparations and did not have the funds to procure eligible land to grow their tobacco. Now, excessive rains this spring and summer have caused tremendous tobacco losses throughout Kentucky and many farmers are uninsured due to no fault of their own.

Harden, who was raised on a tobacco farm in Georgia, testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee earlier this week.

125th US Colored Infantry, Civil War Part IX

"Capt. James W. Prowell, farmer and stock-feeder of Box Township, [Cedar County, Missouri], was born in Adair County, Ky., March 15, 1827, and is the son of James and Margaret (Fletcher) Prowell, the former a native of North Carolina, born February 22, 1775, and the latter born in Greenbrier County, Va. They were married in Kentucky, about 1811, and there Mrs. Prowell spent the remainder of her life, dying in 1848. Mr. Prowell came to Boone County, Mo., in 1851, and died there the following year. He and wife were members of the Baptist Church for many years. Mr. Prowell was a blacksmith in early life, but later followed tilling the soil, and was the owner of a number of slaves.

"William Prowell, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born and reared in Philadelphia, Penn., and was of Irish descent. He was a gunsmith by trade, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and was killed in Kentucky by a falling tree. Robert Fletcher, the maternal grandfather of Capt. Prowell, and a brother-in-law of Col. [William] Casey, one of Kentucky's favorite sons, was born in Virginia, and was an early settler of Kentucky, where he passed his last days.

"Capt. James W. Prowell, the eighth of four sons and seven daughters, was reared to farm life and received but a limited education. When but twenty years of age he joined Company C, Third Kentucky U.S. Dragoons, and served until the close of the Mexican War. He was in the fights around the City of Mexico. In 1851 he came with his father to Missouri; settled in Cedar County two years later, and was there married to Miss Bethsheba Dawson, August 25, 1856. Mrs. Prowell was born in Boone County, Mo., and is the daughter of John W. and Malinda Dawson.

"To Mr. and Mrs. Prowell were born nine children, three sons and three daughters now living; Sarah M., wife of T.W. Morton; Dr. John D., a physician in Pettis County; Jennie; Charles E.; James William; and Fannie M. Since his marriage Mr. Prowell has lived on his present farm and is one of the pioneers of Cedar County. He has 480 acres of good farming land, all the result of his own efforts, and principally acquired since the war.

"In 1861 he commanded Company C, of Walker's Regiment of Missouri Confederate troops, for about six months, and was in the battles of Wilson's Creek, Drywood and Lexington. He was afterward captured at home, but was soon paroled. In politics he has been a life-long Democrat, voting for Gen. Cass in 1848. He has been a member of the Masonic Fraternity for twenty-two years, belonging to Stockton Lodge, and is a Master Mason. He has been an active worker for the cause of education, and all other worthy enterprises, and has spared no pains for the education of his children. His eldest son, the Doctor, took a thorough course at the State University, and is a graduate of Missouri Medical College. Mrs. Prowell is a member of the Christian Church." Biographical sketch from: History of Hickory, Polk, Cedar, Dade and Barton Counties, Missouri, Goodspeed Publishing Company, 1889.

James W. Prowell "commanded Company C, Walker's Regiment, Missouri Confederate troops and was at Battle of Wilson's Creek" however, the Service Record file for James W. Prowell directs the researcher to John H. Prowell, Captain, Company E, 4 Cavalry, 8 Division, MO State Guard, which states he was elected Captain 10 June 1861, resided Clintonville, Cedar County, MO, resigned 13 December 1861. JWP also served in the Mexican War, Company C, 3 US Dragoons. He was born Adair County 15 March 1827, son of James and Margaret Fletcher Prowell; his father migrated to Boone County, MO 1851 and died there the next year. James W. later settled in Cedar County, MO; resided Eldorado Springs, Cedar County, MO 1891, age 64.

"Capt. J.W. Prowell, who was born and reared on the farm now [1900] belonging to J.R. Montgomery, four miles from Columbia, is now in this locality visiting friends and to view his old home. Capt. Prowell served in the Mexican War and when the Civil War broke out he made a good soldier in the Confederate ranks. His home is in Cedar County, Mo., and this is his first visit to this section since 1852. He is now 73 but active and vigorous for a man of that age. He attended the re-union in Louisville and came out here to spend a week or two. --Adair County News, 6 June 1900. [There had been a Confederate Veterans' Reunion held at Louisville, KY in late May 1900.]

negotiate with collectors in court to lessen the debt to be repaid.

Pyles was eager to make it clear that this move was not a Chapter Seven bankruptcy filing, in which the filing entity closes its doors and liquidates all assets.

“Let me reiterate, we are open for business. If you have a surgery planned tomorrow, come on in.”

Attorney Elmer George echoed Pyles’ sentiments, reassuring those in attendance that the hospital would remain open and urging them to help spread the positive word in the community.

“We intend that this hospital stay open. It’s critical to the community.”

“Every community deserves a good hospital,” began David Kantor, an attorney with the Louisville law firm Seller Waterman, LLC., who is considered by many to be the top bankruptcy attorney in the state, and who will be handling the filing for Westlake. “This community already has one. We’re working to keep it that way.”

Kantor went on to explain that, although the Board has done a tremendous job in tightening the finances and controlling expenses while also improving revenue, they were merely hovering around the break-even point. Typically, that is an acceptable approach to a hospital, but when facing a $20 million debt, it leaves you unable to chip away at that massive number owed.

Kantor added that such a move is unprecedented, telling this reporter that he cannot find any published cases of such a filing in the history of the Commonwealth. In fact, he says, there are only about 650 cases ever, nationwide.

“It’s incredibly rare, but it’s there for a purpose,” he said.

As for a time period of resolution, Kantor says that “just depends,” and can be as quickly as a few months.

“You have to factor in how much resistance we will have from creditors,” he explained. “Most likely want to keep us open, if I had to speculate. They may not like what we’re able to do with regards to the debt owed [in court], but whatever the number is, it sure beats zero,” he said, referring to the complete lack of payment on the debts owed that would be received if the hospital closed its doors.

After the explanation was complete, Attorney George took the opportunity to commend the Board for their hard work and dedication to reviving the hospital.

“This community owes them a debt of gratitude,” he said. “They have worked diligently to save your hospital. I really think the community needs to know that. Had they not done it, they likely wouldn’t be open today.” He continued, explaining to the Westlake staff in attendance that the move was a good thing for them as well and that the reorganizing increased their likelihood of protecting their job.

“Everywhere I turn, people say to me ‘We need our hospital,’” Board Vice-Chairman Neal Gold began. “This reorganization is not a backwards step. It’s a forward step. We’re shooting for success here,” he added.

The tone of the meeting was positive, reassuring those in attendance of the future of the hospital while thanking the community for its backing and stressing the importance of continued faith and support in the hospital and its clinics.

“The community support has been really great, especially here recently,” Gold said. “People have volunteered to patch the roof, to mow the lawn, to help with landscaping—it’s really been tremendous.”

In additional news at the meeting, the board:

- Announced a full-fledged Health Fair to be held on October 19, with blood draws beginning on October 1 and an additional schedule of events to be circulated in the media.
- Heard the CFO Report from David Hayes that continued the positive trends of hospital performance numbers. Hayes reported that percent occupancy is up 6% from last year while length of stay is down 1.41%.
- Announced Diane Burton as the new business office manager.
- Announced the results of a government study that shows Westlake in the top 1% in the country in reported patient satisfaction and the overall number one-ranked hospital in the nation in patient-reported room cleanliness.
- Announced the signing of a new lease for a building in Edmonton and the plan to work with the Life Skills behavioral health program in that area.
- Approved two new appointments and five reappointments to the medical staff.
- Approved the annual medical staff laws, which were reviewed and saw no necessary changes from last year.

same charges. The indictment against Meyer was handed down by a Grand Jury on July 23, but the document remained sealed until she was formally served.

“The arrest was delayed because she was out of town,” Det. Hammond said Wednesday morning.

Meyer allegedly acted in complicity with Dudgeon to take more than $11,000 of Westlake property or funds between Dec. 2005 and June 2006.

Like Dudgeon, Meyer was released on bond almost immediately after the arrest. Mark Meyer posted her $10,000 property bond.

“It was kind of the same thing as with [Dudgeon],” Hammond said. “She sat there five minutes then got out. If they arrest you and you can make bond immediately, they’ll cut you loose.”

Hammond said that the investigation is not over, and that he expects that more arrests will follow.

Making Bull Purchasing Decisions

One of the most important investments a beef cattle producer can make is in their herd bull. Genetic progress can be quickly gained or quickly lost based on purchasing decisions of the herd sire. Many times bull purchasing decisions are based upon desired breed, looks, and calving ease. While these factors are important, they do not address the number one factor affecting the calf’s crop value on sale day which is pounds of beef produced.

Actual weaning weights of the bull can sometimes give an indication of the bull’s growth but can easily be masked by environmental conditions. (creep feeding, hay quality, health, etc.) Weaning weight EPD’s go a step further taking a look at the animal’s genetic ability to produce calves with a high weaning weight. Understanding EPD’s and using them when selecting a herd bull can greatly improve bull purchasing decisions and the performance of the calf crop.

A good place to start when purchasing a bull would be looking at the respective breed’s percentile rankings which can be found online or requested at the County Extension Office. For an example, let’s consider we are going to purchase a Charolais bull. Looking at the Charolais EPD percentile ranking for bulls, we will find that a bull with a weaning weight (WW) EPD of 26 ranks in the 50th percentile. In other words a Charolais bull with a WW EPD of 26 fits the breed average for weaning weight. The top 1% of the Charolais bulls have a WW EPD of 50. From this, we can gather that the likely difference between a calf crop from a Charolais bull from the average bull and a bull from the top 1% is 24 lbs at weaning (50-26=24). While buying a bull that ranks in the top 1% of the breed for weaning weight may cost prohibiting investment, so is purchasing a bull that ranks in the bottom 10% of the breed based only because he looks good. While the bull may look good, his WW EPD of 12.8 would imply his calves will weigh 13.2 lbs lighter at weaning than calves from an average Charolais bull.

There are several other EPD factors to consider when purchasing a bull other than just weaning weights. Milking ability is extremely important when planning to retain replacement heifers. Yearling weight EPD should also be used when retaining heifers as it is an indication of mature weight. When breeding heifers, extreme prejudice should be used in selecting a bull with proper calving ease EPD. Some breeds now have docility EPD which can be used to assist in purchasing decisions when a herd needs improvement in their temperament.

It is important to note that EPD’s for each breed are based on a different scale. EPD’s of two bulls of different breeds cannot be compared directly. For example, an Angus bull ranking in the 50th percentile of the breed has a WW EPD of 47 while the Charolais bull at the 50th percentile has a WW EPD of 26. If you would like to learn more about EPD’s and selecting a herd bull, make plans to attend the Adair County Beef and Horticulture Field Day on August 24th at 10:00 at the Danny and Debbie Burris farm.

Annual Women's Methodist Conference Held At LWC

It was a new name but the same good work was done last week at Lindsey Wilson College.

For more than a decade, Mission U. -- formerly known as School of Christian Mission for the Women's Division of The United Methodist Church -- has held its annual four-day meeting on LWC's A.P. White Campus.

Mission U. is an opportunity for people of faith to learn about the historical implications of The United Methodist Church as well as reflect on spiritual issues of the day.

Debbie Rowley, dean of the United Methodist Women of Kentucky, has been involved with the group for more than 20 years and has served in many roles.

"I have helped offices in my local unit, the district and conference levels," Rowley said. "I was the assistant dean in 2011 and 2012, and I'm currently serving as the Dean of Mission U."

Activities at Mission U. included children's study (ages 6-11) and geographical and social issues studies for adults. The all-encompassing nature of the program is designed to reach as many groups as possible.

"United Methodist Women has been on a mission for more than 140 years," Rowley said. "We are organized for mission, and our members are committed to growing as disciples of Jesus Christ in a community with other women and building the lives of women, children and youth. Mission U. allows us to come together and learn about the issues we face both locally and around the world."

Rowley noted that United Methodist women have often led the way in several important areas.

"We have a history of being ahead of the pack when identifying issues that impact communities such as immigration, the political struggles in the Middle East, globalization and climate change," she said.

Rowley said the LWC campus has played a role in the program's success because the college has provided a home-like atmosphere for comfortable study and reflection.

"We have been to other campuses, but Lindsey Wilson College is so welcoming, beautiful and accessible," she said. "And did I mention the meals are wonderful?"

Youth studies members of Mission U. give a presentation about Americans' attitudes toward immigrants.

The family of Rudy Campbell wishes to thank all those who gave support during our recent loss. For the first responders, his pastor, members of his church family, and the many relatives and friends who extended condolences and expressions of sympathy we are truly grateful. We are sorry to have missed those who came to visitation when we had not yet arrived on Friday morning. The professional and caring service provided by the staff of Stotts-Phelps-McQueary Funeral Home and all others involved in the service helped ease our burden at this difficult time. For the thoughts and prayers that continue to support us during our grieving process we are appreciative. May God's blessing continue upon all of you.

My family is the core of my life.”

The adventure started on April 1 in Newbury, Calif., but the idea for the trek came to Buckley three years ago, while he was visiting his son in Utah.

“I was on a long walk,” Buckley said. “I’ve never heard the voice of God before, but I have thoughts that aren’t my own. The thought came: Walk across America.”

After discussing the issue with his wife of 45 years, Glenda, and hearing her support, the concept slowly became a reality. Glenda asked to accompany her husband on the trip, and she’s been one of the project’s chief coordinators throughout the endeavor. She drives an RV ahead of Buckley on his walks, stopping at his next-intended checkpoint and helping map out the routes they’ll take.

Buckley has covered more than 2,200 miles so far, hitting the road six days a week for 10 to 12 hours, and usually goes 20 to 25 miles a day. He’s already gone through seven pairs of walking shoes during his escapade, and says his current ones – which he’s walked nearly 400 miles in – areabout ready to be retired.

“The most challenging part is tomorrow,” Buckley said. “I feel great right now. It’s knowing that I have to get up and walk 20 or 25 miles the next day.”

This dedication and determination might seem odd to some, but Buckley is happy with what he’s doing, and is always eager to share his message about family.

“Our desire is to help the home, the homes of America,” Buckley said.

“We tell them what’s worked for us – having Jesus in the home,” Glenda added.

Throughout the journey, the Buckleys have met some extraordinary characters and made many memories, including one they shared about their time in Texas.

“I was walking along at the end of the day,” Dr. Buckley said. “Two young guys ride up – Jake and Rifle. They invited us

“It’s beautiful country,” Buckley said. “It’s really nice and I’ve learned a lot about the area that I wouldn’t have known.”

The Buckley’s expedition continued Tuesday when the couple headed west towards Somerset, but even then they weren’t sure how far they’d get.

“We thought our route would be set at first, but we’ve

Eleven Die On Kentucky Roadways Last Week

Preliminary statistics* indicate that 11 people died in 11 separate crashes on Kentucky’s roadways from Monday, July 22 through Sunday, July 28, 2013.

One single-fatality, motor vehicle crash occurred in each of the following counties: Hart, Letcher, Perry, Taylor, Warren and Wolfe. The victims in Hart, Letcher, Perry, Warren and Wolfe counties were not wearing seat belts. The crashes in Hart and Wolfe counties involved the suspected use of alcohol.

One single-fatality, motorcycle crash occurred in each of the following counties: Edmonson, Marshall and Warren. The victims in Edmonson and Marshall counties were not wearing helmets.

One single-fatality, ATV crash occurred in Rowan County. The victim was not wearing a helmet and the crash involved the suspected use of alcohol.

One pedestrian was killed in Harrison County. The crash involved the suspected use of alcohol.

not wearing helmets. The five ATV fatalities were not wearing helmets. One bicycle rider has been killed. Twenty-five pedestrians have been killed. One fatality involving an animal drawn vehicle has been reported. A total of 75 fatalities have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol. As of July 28, Kentucky has had 47 days with zero highway fatalities reported during 2013.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

*These statistics are still preliminary as KSP waits for all local law enforcement agencies throughout the state to report any crashes and fatalities that may have occurred in their areas.

Wyrick Named Head Golf Coach at Lindsey Wilson

Eric Wyrick has been named head golf coach at Lindsey Wilson College, athletic director Willis Pooler announced on Monday.

Wyrick takes over the Blue Raider men’s and women’s golf programs after six years in the same position at Union (Ky.).

“Eric has a great understanding of what it takes to lead our nationally prominent golf programs,” Pooler said. “I’m confident that our student-athletes will have a great experience under his leadership while benefiting from his knowledge of the game.”

Wyrick led the Union men’s and women’s golf programs to a combined 15 tournament wins, including each program winning an Appalachian Athletic Conference championship. He led the Bulldog men to the program’s only NAIA National Championship appearance in 2009.

Wyrick says he is excited about the opportunity to lead two nationally-ranked programs.

“Lindsey Wilson has very competitive golf programs and my hope is to add to that tradition,” Wyrick said. “My goal is to provide a great collegiate experience for our student-athletes with hard work on the golf course and a great academic environment off the course.

“I would to thank Willis Pooler and the hiring committee as well as the administration for entrusting me to lead these programs,” Wyrick said. “I’m truly blessed to have this opportunity and I’m excited to meet my teams and look forward to working towards a successful season.”

Wyrick has produced 22 all-conference performers while at Union and 31 all-tournament team members. He was selected by his peers as the 2009 AAC Men’s Golf Coach of the Year and the 2010 AAC Women’s Golf Coach of the Year.

Prior to becoming Union coach, Wyrick earned all-conference honors all four seasons for the Bulldogs -- the only Union men’s golfer to earn that distinction.

Wyrick replaces Shaun Cozart who resigned earlier this summer. The Lindsey Wilson College men’s golf team is scheduled to open its fall season on Sunday, Sept. 1 as the Blue Raiders face Campbellsville (Ky.) in the annual President’s Cup matches at Old Bridge Golf Course in Danville, Ky.

The Blue Raiders women begin their season on Sept. 9-10 at the Bill Sergeant Invitational at Crooked Creek Golf Club in London, Ky.

David Dews Named Lindsey Wilson Softball Coach

Lindsey Wilson Athletic Director Willis Pooler announced Tuesday that David Dews has been hired as the next head coach of the Blue Raider softball program.

Dews comes to Lindsey Wilson after six successful seasons as the head coach at Darton State (Ga.).

“David has all the attributes we were looking for in a coach to continue the great success of Lindsey Wilson softball,” Pooler said. “His commitment to the development of student-athletes -- both on and off the field -- his knowledge of the nuances of the game and his dedication to the mission of Lindsey Wilson made him the perfect fit.”

“I’m excited to take over a program that has great tradition and quality student-athletes,” Dews said. “My goal is to take the success that Coach McCool established here at Lindsey Wilson and continue to build on it with my system and ultimately compete for a national championship.”

Dews led Darton State to a pair of National Junior College Athletic Association World Series appearances, including a fifth-place finish during the 2011 national tournament.

His Darton State teams won four Georgia Collegiate Athletic Association regular season titles and a pair of state championships. Last season, Dews’ team finished 37-15 and tied for second place in the GCAA with a 12-4 conference mark. He owns a 231-79 career record at Darton State.

In his six seasons at Darton State, Dews helped more than 40 student-athletes move on to play at a four-year institution.

Prior to taking over the Darton State program, Dews served two seasons as head coach at Lurleen B. Wallace Community College (Ala.) and four seasons as the head assistant at Wallace Community College (Ala.).

“I want to thank Willis Pooler and the administration for granting me this opportunity,” Dews said. “Lindsey Wilson is a first-class institution with an outstanding athletic department and I feel honored to be a part of it.

“I would also like to thank Darton State College for giving me the opportunity to be successful during my stay there and my family for their continued support throughout my coaching career.”

Dews replaces Ashley McCool-Cozart who resigned earlier this summer to take over the same position at North Alabama.

Lindsey Wilson finished the 2013 season with a program-record 50 wins. The Blue Raiders won their fourth straight Mid-South Conference regular season and tournament titles last season while reaching the NAIA National Championship Opening Round.

The Blue Raiders’ 2014 scheduled will be released later this fall.

LWC Football Picked Fourth In Mid-South Conference East

Lindsey Wilson football is picked to finish fourth in the Mid-South Conference East Division in 2013, according the MSC Preseason Coaches’ Poll announced today by conference officials.

The Blue Raiders received 22 voting points from the East Division coaches. Coaches were not allowed to vote for their own team in the poll.

Georgetown (Ky.) is the MSC East Division preseason favorite with 35 voting points and five of the seven first-place votes. Cumberlands (Ky.) is projected to finish second in the East with 32 voting points, including the final two first-place votes. Kentucky Christian is third with 24 voting points.

Union (Ky.) is projected fifth with 15 voting points followed by Pikeville (Ky.) with 13 voting points and Bluefield (Va.) with six voting points.

Lindsey Wilson returns to the East Division in 2013 after spending one season in the MSC West Division in 2012.

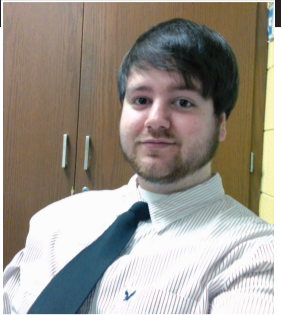

The Blue Raiders posted winning divisional records in 2010 and 2011 while members of the East Division. Lindsey Wilson owns a 7-4 all-time divisional record in the East.

Lindsey Wilson opens its 2013 season at 7 p.m. CT on Saturday, Aug. 31 against Campbellsville (Ky.) at Blue Raider Stadium.

The Blue Raiders’ first East Division game is slated for 1:30 p.m. CT on Saturday, Sept. 21 against Pikeville (Ky.) at home.

THE BREAKDOWN

with Blake Spires

It took less than a week for the baseball world to remember that Ryan Braun isn’t the guy we hate the most. Sure he cheated, took performance enhancing drugs, won an MVP while on them, lied about it and then gloated like a child when he was initially cleared due to a technicality before being named in the most recent wave of PED-related suspensions. But he’s not the worst thing about baseball, especially from a fan perspective. No, that has been, and for the foreseeable future will be, a tie between the New York Yankees and Alex Rodriguez.

Hilariously, this match made in Hades, who so clearly deserve one another, are now having their falling out in a very public manner. While A-Rod’s postseason struggles have drawn the ire of Yankees fans since he joined the team in 2004 with a record $252 million contract, a record that was only broken by the divisive $275 million contract extension the club signed him to in 2007, things have recently escalated to a new level.

After a January 16 arthroscopic surgery to repair a torn labrum, Rodriguez began the 2013 season on the 60-Day Disabled List. In the meantime, steroid rumors, which have swirled around the slugger his entire career, flared up once again—this time apparently supported by such evidence that the New York Post is reporting as of Monday morning that MLB could pursue a lifetime ban.

With incredibly disappointing returns due to a plague of injuries, seeming lack of focus, and deterioration of his performance that many speculate are a result of his inability to get by with steroid use any longer, the Yankees management has been outwardly critical of Rodriguez and essentially expressed regret in the 10-year, record breaking 2007 extension.

During his minor league rehab assignment earlier this month, A-Rod experienced a slight calf strain. The strain required an MRI to test for further damage, and the team and Rodriguez postponed his Major League return to allow him time to heal. Or so the Yankees said publicly. On July 24, A-Rod sought the second opinion of another doctor who said, according to the MRI, he was completely healthy and ready to play. The Yankees dispute that claim, and added another incident to their list of times they have publicly scolded Rodriguez for releasing his injury information without team consent.

Many believe (and they’re 100-percent correct) that the Yankees are hoping to delay A-Rod’s return as long as they possibly can in hopes that the MLB suspension that is rumored to be looming will be handed down before he takes the field. The hope, according to the speculation, is that by not playing this season, the team will be able to file an insurance claim and recoup some or all of the ridiculous $28 million he is scheduled to make this season. In fact, talks have swirled about the New York club attempting to void the remaining contract altogether as well as potentially get back some of the money already paid to the 38-year-old former phenom.

This could perhaps seem justifiable if you believed the Yankees, or any other team in the majors, either had no idea their players were using steroids or took any measures at all to try and find out. The more we learn, however, the more it becomes painfully obvious that the teams either knew and did nothing about the rampant use of PEDs in the sport for more than a decade, or went to great lengths to avoid finding out. In short, every team buried their head in the sand and told themselves their guys were clean despite the rest of the league appearing to have Volkswagens for forearms.

But that’s not the case. The Yankees knew A-Rod was juicing just like they knew Andy Pettite, Roger Clemens, Jason Giambi and a host of other All Stars in pinstripes were using PEDs. They stood by those other guys and allowed them to return to the field after suspensions or whatever action (or inaction) was taken by baseball—just like every other team does with productive players. The key word there is ‘productive.’

A-Rod isn’t productive anymore. That’s where this moral outrage and claims of ‘false goods’ and ‘misrepresentation’ come from. The Yankees aren’t mad he used steroids to play at the level that earned him a $275 million contract. They’re mad he can’t use steroids to play at that level anymore.

They paid him that money because he was the youngest player to hit 300, 400, 500 and 600 home runs. All logic suggested he’d be the one to break the HR record, to take it from the evil Barry Bonds, to return the legitimacy of sport’s most-fabled stat. Turns out, he’s as guilty as Bonds, and like Bonds, he’s a diva that is despised by his teammates-- all for nearly $30 million dollars a year. They’re paying him to stay away at this point, and the baseball world couldn’t be happier.

Indian Golf Eyes a Return to State

By Blake Spires

After a 2012 season that resulted in a top-10 finish at state competition, the highest in the history of the program, Adair County High School Indian Golf is poised to make another deep run again in 2013.

Despite losing their fantastic Head Coach Steve Burton and two of their top five players in Alex Durham and Trey Garmon, who have each gone on to play collegiate golf at Lindsey Wilson College, this year's edition of the Indian Golf team has all the tools to replace the losses. New Head Coach and ACHS alum Chris Lewis will lead the charge, and as a talented golfer who recently finished his successful career at LWC, is the right man to maintain the promising status of the program.

"I've always loved the game," Lewis says. "I started playing at a young age, played with the high school team from sixth grade until graduation and then played four years at Lindsey Wilson, so it's been a big part of my life."

In fact, coaching has always seemed like the logical step for Lewis, even during his own playing career. "All during that time, I'd have people come to me and want me to help them with their swing or show them how to do something," Lewis says. "When the job at ACHS came open, I knew I could help the kids here improve their game."

As a first year coach with an eye on improvement, Chris has an impressive array of young players at his disposal, and improvement to that talent level could yield more historic results for the program. Beginning with the two seniors, Daniel Rarey and Jacob Keltner, the Indian Golf top five figures to be very strong again this year.

"Daniel has loads of talent," Coach Lewis says. "He wants to play at the next level, and he can definitely do it. He has the tools and he's an excellent person that does everything I ask him to do."

"Jacob is playing great golf right now," Lewis adds. "He's a great person, works hard, and has a great chance to be in our top five."

In addition to the two seniors, rising junior Riley Grant is likely to figure heavily into the success of the team this season.

"Riley has the total package. He's a great person and student. He'll definitely play at the next level," Lewis says.

It's not only the talent at the top, however. Much of the success of the growing program has come from its depth, and

The 2013 Adair County High School Girls Golf Team: Coach Natalie Sneed, Rachel Phipps, Madison Bell, Hailey Taylor and Lauren McQuaide.

Lady Indians Continue Building Program Under New Coach

By Blake Spires

Although the school year is still a few weeks away, the 2013 Adair County High School Lady Indian golf team is in full swing. Braving the blistering mid-July heat in order to fully capitalize on their off-season practice time, the Lady Indian golfers have been working diligently under new head coach and ACHS alum Natalie Sneed.

Despite being new to the coaching side of the sport, Natalie has been an avid golfer since the age of 10 when her grandfather, J.D. Biggs, introduced her to the game. Her love for the sport led her to a successful career at Adair County High that even continued beyond her high school days as she earned the opportunity to play collegiate golf at Lindsey Wilson College.

Over a decade of experience on the course did not completely prepare Natalie for everything that comes with coaching, however. "All of the behind-the-scenes work it takes to have an organized and successful season was something that I didn't quite realize," she said. "Scheduling, transportation, fundraisers and practice--all those things take a lot of time and energy. It's definitely given me even more respect for my past coaches."

One of those past coaches, and the woman for whom Natalie gives much of the credit for her love for the game and desire to coach, is former ACHS Lady Indian golf coach Kim Goodin. Natalie says that between Goodin's methods and instruction, as well as the things she learned during her time at LWC, that she is looking to replicate the techniques that were successful in teaching her as she ventures into teaching young golfers.

That experience figures to be one that includes much learning for the new coach as well as her players. Long-time contributors to the Lady Indian golf program Abby Royse and Ashley Goodin graduated last year, and with them went the talent and experience a first-year coach would typically rely on. However, the cupboard is far from bare, and Coach Sneed actually has a former teammate remaining on the squad.

"I played with Rachel for two years before graduating," Natalie said of lone Lady Indian senior Rachel Phipps, who is entering her sixth year with the program. "It helps because it hasn't been long since I was in their shoes, so I know how they

ACHS Golf - Meet the Seniors

Rachel Phipps

We begin our look at 2013 ACHS Fall Sport senior athletes with the lone senior member of the Lady Indians golf team, Rachel Phipps.

Rachel, who is entering her sixth year with the Lady Indians golf program, looks to provide first-year head coach Natalie Sneed with leadership on and off the course that extends beyond your typical four-year contribution. This leadership role is something Rachel takes seriously, because she remembers a time when the roles were reversed.

"When I first joined the team, I was the youngest. Everyone took care of me," she said. "For three years it was like that, until some younger girls joined the team. I had to step up and show responsibility to those younger girls the way the older girls had done with me. Now, as a senior, I have even more responsibility to represent and set a good example to my younger teammates."

She continued to say that that's her true goal for the season: to help pave the way for her underclassmen teammates and to make memories with them that make her final season as a Lady Indian golfer unforgettable.

Those memories have a long way to go in living up to what she says is her favorite on-course memory from her time with the golf team. "[Former ACHS Lady Indian golfer] Coach [Kim] Goodin and her cooler," Rachel starts with a laugh. "The amount of times she dropped that cooler or it flipped off her cart is uncountable. Once, I was having an off-day and just not playing well and Coach Goodin drove by and gave me some words of encouragement. When she took off again, the cooler fell off the cart and ice and drinks went everywhere. After my laughter finally died down, I actually played much better."

With Coach Goodin retiring from the team, Rachel will have a new coach to potentially spill the cooler after a pep-talk, but she says she expects Coach Sneed to handle things in a very similar way. "She played under Coach Goodin, so I think they have the same techniques and expectations for us. It's a little different because she's closer to our age, and so it wasn't that long since she was in our shoes, but when it comes to respect and authority, she's still your coach."

Whether it's funny moments on the course or interacting off of it, Rachel says the personal relationships are what she'll remember the most about her time as a Lady Indian golfer. "Every match and tournament, you really don't know who you're going to be playing with. I've met so many people and made so many friendships because of this sport."

With all those memories and expectations lingering, Rachel still holds true to what she says would be her advice to all golfers—a quote from the legendary golfer Bobby Jones: "You swing your best when you have the fewest things to think about."

Jacob Keltner

Our 2013 ACHS Fall Sport Senior Spotlight continues with ACHS Indian golf team member Jacob Keltner.

Jacob has played throughout his high school career, and enters his senior season with high ambition for himself and his teammates. After finishing as the regional runner-up last season and an ACHS record-setting tenth in the state as a team, Jacob says the goal is clear for Indian golf this season.

"I want to make it back to state," he said. "Myself and the team, we want to go compete again."

If the team is to replicate or surpass the success of last year, Jacob knows he must not only continue to improve as a golfer, but that he must play a role in helping his teammates too.

"As a senior, you always want to try and set an example. I have to do my part in setting that example for the younger players."

With first-year head coach Chris Lewis leading the squad after the retirement of former coach Steve Burton from his coaching position, it might be easy to assume that Jacob and the other seniors would need to shoulder more of the leadership load this season. Jacob, however, says that's not the case.

"There isn't much difference when it comes to that," he says. "They're both great coaches, and they both expect the best for us on and off the course. He may be closer to my age, but that doesn't change anything. He's my coach, I still do what he says."

With his eyes on a return to state, it is still the earliest memory that Jacob says stands out the most, citing the first tournament he played in as something he'll always remember. But that's not his favorite memory from his time with ACHS golf. In fact, those memories were all built with his teammates, he says. When asked to pick a favorite, he narrows it down, but only slightly.

"The whole team hanging out in Daniel [Rarey]'s basement after practice everyday," he says without hesitation.

Even with the off-course fun and the on-course success, Jacob maintains that golf isn't nearly as easy as it may look to those who have never played the game, and makes his mindset upon entering his final season with ACHS golf clear.

"There's always room for improvement," he said after a particularly sweltering late-July practice. "You can always get better."

Daniel Rarey

We wrap up our look at the 2013 ACHS Indian golf team as part of our Fall Sport Senior Spotlight with Indian golf veteran Daniel Rarey.

Daniel, a seven-year member of the program, has played a vital role in the development of Indians golf and contributed to its stellar showing in the last few seasons.

As a freshman, Daniel finished two-under-par to beat Taylor County, a memory he says is one of his favorite from his time with the team. In 2010, he was part of the first ACHS golf team to advance to state tournament play and last year helped anchor the most successful season in the history of the program as the team finished as the regional runner-up and tenth in the state.

With the loss of last year's seniors as well as head coach Steve Burton, Daniel says he's expected to have to step up and be more of a leader this year, even making it one of the goals he set for himself in the off-season. So far, Daniel has done just that.

"I'm taking on that leadership role," he said. "It really helps the overall team play if someone sets an example to the younger players of how things should be done."

He also said that the coaching change has gone very well, and that it's hard to compare the two.

"They're honestly both great coaches. It's hard to replace a coach that had so much success in only four years, but I believe Coach Lewis will have similar success."

"He's been great so far," Daniel said. "I feel like I can relate really well to him, and he does a good job of explaining things to us."

Despite his personal and team success, as well as having the added bonus of playing for two very good coaches, Daniel echoes the sentiments of his teammates that golf is definitely not as easy as it may look to some who have never played. In fact, even incredibly experienced golfers often find themselves struggling, he says.

"That's what I try and tell the younger guys," he said. "You have to just keep practicing, this game takes time."

Indian Golf

Coach Lewis expects a very similar story this season as well. Underclassmen Korey Hundley, Tanner Garmon, Austin Cundiff, Joseph Farmer and Blake Maupin all look to battle heavily for a spot in the five-man rotation and up-and-comers Jameson Miller, Bryce Farris, Tanner Janes and Zach Pyles provide not only a bright future but the potential to boost the squad now.

With so much young talent, it seems appropriate that a young talented coach would lead them. “I think being a young coach is a positive thing,” Lewis said. “It wasn’t too long ago that I was in their shoes. I know how they’re feeling and what they’re thinking and that helps a lot in coaching. It helps me relate to them.”

That optimism for his coaching methods and the talent on the 2013 team make the goal for the upcoming season clear: “We want to make it to state, bottom line,” Lewis says.

The quest for a return to state begins on August 2 as the Indians travel to Dale Hollow. Their home opener is August 6.

feel and some of the challenges they’re facing.”

Phipps figures to lead the Lady Indian golf team this season, which features sophomore Madison Bell and eighth graders Lauren McQuaide and Hailey Taylor.

“Rachel is our only senior this year, so we’ll look to her for leadership,” Coach Sneed said. “She’s a very good golfer and has great potential. If she puts in the time and effort, she can have a great season.”

But it’s not only the senior who Coach Sneed believes can have a productive 2013 showing. “We’re young, but we have some talented girls and the capability for a good year.”

That year officially begins on today when the Lady Indians travel to Barren County for their first match. Tournament play for the 2013 season opens the following day at Monroe County—the same course where the Lady Indians will attempt to qualify for regional play later in the season. For now, however, Coach Sneed is taking one step at a time as she and her team continue to learn and improve together.

“I’m excited,” she said about the upcoming season. “I love working with the girls, trying to be a positive influence for them on and off the course, and I expect us to grow as a team and to work harder to improve our golf game throughout the season.”

(PH) Public Hearing

NOTICE OF HEARING

The Adair Co. Board of Education will hold a public hearing in the Board Room of the Central Office on August 15 at 6:00 p.m. to hear public comments regarding a proposed general fund tax levy of 50.1 cents on real property and 50.1 cents on personal property.

The General fund tax levied in fiscal year 2013 was 47.9 cents on real property and 47.9 cents on personal property and produced revenue of $3,001,205. The proposed 2013-2014 General Fund tax rate of 50.1 cents on real property and 50.1 cents on personal property is expected to produce $3,192,576.51. Of this amount $446,823.22 is from new and personal property. The compensating tax for 2014 is 48.1 cents on real property and 48.1 cents on personal and is expected to produce $3,065,128.35.

The general areas to which revenue of $191,371.51 above the 2013 revenue is to be allocated are as follows: Cost of Collection, $7,654.86 and Building Fund, $1,109.95 and Instruction, $182,606.70.

•Outdoor Expo

"They have been very supportive and helpful from the start."

The turkey calling contests will include the Kentucky Open Championship, the Kentucky State Championship, the Friction State/Open, the Owl Hooting Open, the 16-20 Year-Old Open, and the 15 and Under Youth Open. Shooting contests include: the 12 Gauge Open, the 12 Gauge Black Powder Muzzle Loader, the 20 gauge Open, the 20 Gauge Ladies Open, the 20 Gauge Jakes Open (for competitors 17 and under), and the 12 Gauge Hunter (amateur). All shooting contests will take place at the Adair County Sportsman's Club.

"Without the Sportsman's Club this type of event wouldn't be a possibility," Partin says. "They have a great venue for this type of event."

Don Franklin Motors sponsors both the target shoots and the calling contests.

Another big attraction at the Outdoor Expo every year is the extensive list of guest speakers, and this year is no different. Gordon Whittington – editor-in-chief of North American Whitetail Magazine and co-host of North American Whitetail Television is on the docket, as is Jimmy Rodgers, owner of Mallard Run Kennels and manager of Big Creek Ducks-N-Bucks.

Rodgers will speak about retriever training, and will even have dogs on site for demonstrations of training methods and techniques.

"That seminar will probably be outdoors so the dogs will have room to run," Partin says. "The other ones will most likely be inside."

Other speakers that day will include Rex Holmes, Jr., the CEO and founder for Vapor Trail Scents, and Mark Menendez, a Bassmaster Elite Series pro fisherman.

"Rex Holmes is a world-renowned authority on scents in hunting – he does shows all over the country," Partin explains. "Mark Menendez is the 17th ranked angler in the world, so we're very happy to have both of them."

"Our seminar program has really grown over the years," Partin continues. "We've got the best of the best this year. We couldn't have attracted these people in the early years of the Expo."

Adair County's Sammy Blair will be on hand, displaying some of the biggest deer killed in Adair County.

"Sammy invites 12 of Adair County's monster bucks to come to the Expo for display," Partin explains. "This is an opportunity to see those big deer that were taken right here in Adair County."

In addition to the 12 big local deer Blair will be showing, six additional deer – some of the largest killed in North America in 2012 – will also be on display.

As always, there will be vendors set up all over the gymnasium peddling a wide assortment of outdoor-themed goods.

"The main floor vendors sold out two months ago," Partin says. "This brings a lot of people and money into the community. The Columbia-Adair County Chamber of Commerce has been very supportive of us because they recognize the economic boost it brings to the community."

Partin hints that this year might feature a few surprise celebrity visits, and encourages people of all ages to come out and join in the fun.

"This is a family event," Partin says. "You don't have to be a hunter or fisherman to enjoy yourself."

Sponsors for the Expo this year include: The Adair Progress, WAIN Radio, The Adair County Community Voice, WHVE the Wave Radio, WVLC the Big Dawg Radio, Day & Day Feed and Pet, Duo County Telecom, and Jefferies Feed and Seed.

Food and concessions will be available all day, provided by Johnny Richard and Jones Chapel Church. Admission for the Expo will be five dollars, which enters the attendee into the drawing for the John Deere Gator, but additional tickets may be purchased for five dollars each.

"We still haven't had an Adair County person win the Gator," Partin says. "Maybe we can change that this year."

Partin wants to additionally thank Chad Parnell for designing the Expo's website and fliers, as well as the event's other co-chair, David Jones.

About Sarah Roberts Hart

Dr. Sarah Brooke Hart was born December 1, 1980 in Somerset, KY to her loving parents, Wendell and Cindy Roberts. Along with her younger sister Elizabeth, Sarah grew up in Jamestown, KY and married her long-time boyfriend, Ryan Hart, in 2003. Their family grew with the additions of their children, Avery, Addison, and Archer. Sarah was a 2005 graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy.

A long time member of Freedom Christian Church, Sarah was an avid landscaper, runner, a talented photographer, enjoyed cooking and scrapbooking, and along with Ryan, was a successful hunter and fisherman. Most of all, Sarah was a kind, patient, and devoted wife and mother who cherished God and her family above all else. While Sarah may be physically absent from our earthly world, her legacy will remain forever.

The Sarah Roberts Hart Fund was established in honor of Sarah's life and dedication to her family, faith, education, and her profession as a pharmacist. The Fund will provide scholarships for area students pursuing careers in the fields of pharmacy and/or medicine. To make donations directly to the fund, address your check payable to the Sarah Roberts Hart Fund, P.O. Box 1036, Jamestown, KY 42629.
